? Frequently Asked Questions:

What's the cost?
Maybe you thought we were kidding when we said it earlier, but the tour is completely free of charge. No commitments. No strings attached.

Why are you doing this?
We honestly believe that we are doing things the right way, and would love to share our insights with you. This is more of a discussion than a lecture, however, so we stand to gain a lot from the actual discussion, your questions and your thoughts. The more we give, the more we get.

Who is the target audience?
Engineers, product people, HR and anyone who has any touchpoint with product development, really. Your leadership team probably has the most to gain from what we want to share with you.

What's the recommended group size?
We've hosted groups of various sizes. From a single person, to a group of 20+.

Can I ask you anything?
Of course you can, but we won't necessarily answer ;) Klarna is a private company, so we can't share any financial or business data that has not been made public yet. We may not be able to share all the details on future products, either. However, we'll be glad to answer any questions regarding how we ship awesome products, how we work, how we hire, the challenges we face, etc. We'll be as transparent as we can with you.

Seriously, what's the catch?
No catch. We're not trying to sell you anything, and we don't have a hidden agenda. Come hang out with us. It will be terrific!

Great, How do I sign up?
